Pitalito, Huila

Pitalito municipality is located in the south of the renowned coffee growing region of Huila. The region is the largest producer of coffee in Colombia with fertile soil, an abundance of water and a mild climate allowing for high altitude growing regions.

The Finca Los Pinos micro-lot is from producer Jonh Fernando Pinzon Santamaria. The farm covers only 2 hectares, but consists of 10,000 coffee trees that flourish in this environment. Grown under Guamos shade trees in a semi-shaded environment, the coffee is processed at a traditional wet mill before it is dried using an invernadero (Greenhouse), also known as a Parabolic drying. This drying method is common in Colombia as it protects the green coffee from the elements.

The cup yields a fudge-like, rich complexity that compliments the citrus finish. This lot is packed in Grainpro to preserve quality.
