Arabica coffee was first planted in the region of Aceh, near Lake Tawar, Northern Sumatra in the early 1900's. The crop has come a long way and the local Gayo community now embraces coffee as a key for success of future generations. This lot is grown in the Gayo Highland by farming families on small plots averaging 1.5 hectares.

All of the coffee selected for this lot is grown at a minimum of 1300 meters in order to reflect cup quality. Our local office in Sumatra has worked tirelessly with small farmers to find the top qualities in this region and assist in developing their practices to ensure sustainability and quality in the long term.
